Greets Lawn Mower Company Head

Governor White presents O. T. Jacobsen, Racine, Wis., president of Johnston Lawn Mower Corporation, with a privileged guest courtesy card for the State of Mississippi. The manufacturing executive's visit to the Governor's office followed an inspection trip to Johnston's new plant which is nearing completion at Brookhaven. Being built under Mississippi's BAWI program at a cost of $600,000, it is considered to be the most modern power lawn mower manufacturing plant in the nation. A pioneer manufacturer of power lawn mowers for home owners use, Johnston will produce a complete line of popular-priced reel and rotary type mowers at the Brookhaven plant for nationwide distribution. Accompanying Jacobsen to the Governor's office were (left to right) L. M. Taylor, vice president, Mississippi Power & Light Company; H. M. May, vice president and manager of Johnston, who has recently moved to Brookhaven; and Mayor Jewel Campbell of Brookhaven, who with Mr. Taylor was instrumental in encouraging the location of the new Johnston plant in the state.
